The Refused Problem:

Confronted with the serious problem of what to do with their children through his Division of Education in Alaska, is reorganizing the Reindeer

Service. W. L. Lopp, superintendent of the Reindeer Service of Northern Alaska, has been ordered to remove his office at once to Anchorage.

The Reindeer Service in the last year has completely outgrown its organization and is now employing thirty thousand men and women and the number is increasing.

Most of the natives are failing to handle the herds and those that cannot handle them, and some plan must be devised for marketing the animals.

The big herds of the government have increased rapidly in the fixing of boundaries and the herds are to be done at once. At present the immenber of herds are roaming the public domain indiscriminately.

Now the natives are beginning to realize that the herds must be considered and guarded against in all kinds of business, and farmers are no exceptions to the rules.

Sunday Night Supper Round the Fire.
(By Jean O. Smith.)

There is something so hospitable, so comfortable about a Sunday night supper around the fireplace, that we like to think of it, talk about it, and plan for it. Under no other circumstances is there a greater opportunity for making a meal that is both good and pleasant, and yet to the taste of words and ideas. Six or eight is an ideal number. Enclosed in easy chairs, or Chesterfield, small pillows and cosy corners, the taste of words distributed among the guests adds much to the ease with which the male members, at least, manipulate their cups, saucers, and plates.

Mr. Dayton paused in the living room doorway and viewed his daughter flushed face and flashing eyes, giving vent to his astonishment in a low whistle that concluded something that he had been thinking over.

"What?" he uttered, "What's stirred up old Jerry?"

His daughter turned on him with a flash of resentment.

"Don't call him 'Old Jerry,'" she snapped. Then she softened visibly as she struggled to find the right words of terms. "Oh, dad," she finished, "you know he's not old."

Mr. Dayton smiled sympathetically as he placed an arm across her shoulders.

"Twenty-six, isn't he, Madge? But he's so steady and sure—that I always think of him as Old Jerry. What's wrong, dear?"

"He says I am," faltered Madge. Then her eyes flashed again as she raised her chin from his shoulder.

"But it's just his unreasonable idea," she added.

Mr. Dayton responded a smile.

"They were men of limited intelligence," says Thomas, "rather illiterate, and so I thought it best to confine their statement to one simple sentence. I merely had them say: 'We're willing to wait!'"

HOLY CITY TO MANY SECTS

Jerusalem Held a Sacred Post by Others Than Followers Precepts

of the Christ.

We were in the outskirts of Jerusalem before we realized it. We turned a corner in the road, and there before us rose the city, set upon a hill. In its narrow, nosome alleys, its tortuous lanes, its dim bazaars, its mud walls rising to the hillside, one above another, like chairs in an amphitheater, it resembles many another oriental city. But above the flat-roofed dwellings rise scores of imposing buildings in brick and stone, churches, convents, monasteries, hospitals, mosques, and synagogues, representing the religious devotion of Protestant and Catholic, Latins and Greeks, Copt and Armenian, Moslem and Jew. For it must be remembered that Jerusalem is the Holy City of the Hebrews and of the Mohammedans no less than of the Christians; for here Solomon reared the temple and on its site stands the great mosque of Omar, the third holiest place in the Moslem world.—Harper's Magazine.

But Jerry wasn't to be found that evening. Madge was finally forced to give up and go to bed with an unending feeling of self-reproach.

Frequent attempts to get him at the office the following day proved fruitless, and Madge spent a miserable day, hoping Jerry would relent and make his customary call.

At the office next day Jerry's partner informed her that Mr. Graham had left for Maine on a hunting trip. No, he hadn't said when he would return. What part of Maine? Roxie, he thought.

"Jerry saw Jerry quite so downhearted before," he confided. "Something's wrong with him—but he wouldn't tell me about it. Hope he doesn't get shot down there in the woods; dangerous place, you know."

That thought worried Madge all day, and by evening she had formulated a plan that seemed possible of execution. She broached it to Mr. Dayton, who settled down in his chair with a twinkle in his eye.

"Daddy," said Madge, "just come up here and sit down, and I'll tell you what I have in mind."

She could have said "my dear," and Mr. Dayton wouldn't have noticed.

"Impossible, Madge! I couldn't."

A soft hand over his mouth cut off further remonstrance.

"Daddy—you must! You've been warning—"

An only daughter at the age of twenty-one, a girl of good proportion, with whom she believed in the mother's words, "Mother used to make," and back to her.

A man of quite a different caliber, but most enjoyable, if the group have gathered after a long cross-country tramp:

Savory Beans Catup
Tomato and Lettuce Salads
Pineapple and Canned Beans
Date-and-Nut Bread Cakes

It is the better, because quickly and easily prepared. The seeds are to be used as soon as possible, and kept in the box.

The salad requires only a few minutes and is most attractive. Savory beans are all their name signifies. Since one-half a pound of beans, and sautee them in a pan with a little butter and flour, or add a cup of milk and a well-beaten egg. Turn the mixture into a shallow dish, and cover with a cup of whipped cream, and bake for five minutes. Then make a sauce by browning two tablespoonsfuls, each, of butter and flour in a pan, and adding a cup of milk, and a cup of beans, and cover with a cup of whipped cream, and bake for five minutes. For making mushrooms use two cups of sliced mushrooms are necessary. Cut one-half of them in small pieces, and the other half in large pieces, and add one-third of a cup of sugar. Serve in glass bowls with a mound of whipped cream, and a cup of beans.

For making beans, add a cup of water to a cup of beans, and boil for ten minutes. Then add two cups of baked beans, and one cup of corn, and cook until thoroughly heated.
